Overview

This Cookie Policy explains how TrueQuinn uses cookies, local storage, pixels, SDKs, and similar technologies on Quinn Curate and related services.

At launch, cookies are primarily used for essential platform functions such as authentication, security, theme preference, and remembering cookie choices. As the platform grows, we may add analytics, personalization, affiliate attribution, and advertising technologies with appropriate consent controls.

Essential Technologies

Essential cookies and local storage keep the site working. They may support login sessions, Supabase authentication, fraud prevention, security, feature flags, cookie consent records, and interface preferences such as light or dark mode.

You can block essential cookies in your browser, but core features may stop working.

Analytics and Performance

We may use analytics tools to understand page performance, feature usage, errors, conversion flow, and product quality. These tools help us improve the platform and detect issues.

Where required, analytics will be disabled or limited until you provide consent.

Personalization and Affiliate Attribution

Personalization technologies may remember style preferences, saved looks, survey progress, and feed interactions so recommendations feel more curated over time.

Affiliate attribution technologies may help retailers or affiliate networks know that a purchase came from a TrueQuinn link. This can allow TrueQuinn to earn a commission at no additional cost to you.

Your Choices

You can accept all cookies or continue with essential cookies only from the cookie banner. You can also clear cookies or local storage in your browser settings.

Browser-level Do Not Track signals are not standardized, but we will continue evaluating privacy controls as the platform matures.

Updates and Contact

We may update this Cookie Policy when technologies, vendors, or legal requirements change.
